

South Australian Aboriginal Heritage Consultants

In response to ongoing requests, the Attorney General's Department, Aboriginal Affairs and Reconciliation (AGD-AAR) has collated a list of commercial Aboriginal heritage consultants currently working in South Australia.

Consultants on this list have self-nominated and are listed alphabetically.

AGD-AAR does not:

- recommend or endorse one consultant over another
- make any warranty as to the skill, capability, knowledge, experience or suitability of any consultant for any particular work.

Many qualified heritage consultants are also members of the Australian Association of Consulting Archaeologists \(AACAI\) or Australia ICOMOS.

If you wish to engage a heritage consultant, you should consider seeking testimonials and references from them, including from relevant Aboriginal people and communities.

Heritage consultants should be willing to provide their services in accordance with a code of ethics, such as those maintained by AACAI, ICOMOS and the Australian Archaeological Association.

Some Aboriginal people and organisations have long-term, established relationships with particular heritage professionals. Where possible, all consultants providing Aboriginal heritage services or advice should be working directly with traditional owners and appropriate Aboriginal organisations.

For updates to or inclusion on this list, please email DPC-AAR.Conservation@sa.gov.au.
